

Journal of Environmental Planning and Management

CALL FOR PAPERS

Special issue:

Landscape planning and valuation

This special issue of the Journal of Environmental Planning and Management (JEPM) aims at bringing scientific insights to the provision and management of rural, peri-urban and urban landscapes. This issue looks towards gathering original socio-economic analyses on landscape planning processes based on the analysis of the institutional framework and public or private policies. It also looks towards assessing the value of landscape. Both theoretical and empirical studies are welcome.

- analysis of the public / private provision of the landscape,
- the place of the landscape in local / regional / urban development,
- landscape valuation and cost-benefit analysis.

The European Consortium for Landscape Economics (CEEP) will guest-edit this special issue. The submission and referring processes are the same as for usual submissions to the JEPM. Hence, contributors to the special issue are invited to follow the JEPM's authors guidelines which are available on the Taylor & Francis website at:

<http://www.tandf.co.uk/journals/titles/09640568.asp>

Papers should not exceed 8,000 words with abstracts of around 100 words.

Contributions should be sent to the editors of this special issue:
